TORONTO â€“ Canada Post is proud to have been named Corporation of the Year by the Canadian Queer Chamber of Commerce (CQCC) for its contributions to driving positive change and economic growth within the 2SLGBTQI+ community.

The award was presented November 13 at the 11th Annual Black & White Gala, where the CQCC recognized organizations and individuals helping to advance opportunities for 2SLGBTQI+ entrepreneurs and businesses across the country.

Canada Post is grateful to the CQCC for this important recognition and congratulates the other finalists and winners for their groundbreaking work and for being at the forefront of 2SLGBTQI+ inclusion. While the award signals that Canada Post is moving in the right direction on equity, diversity and inclusion, we understand there is still more to do. We'll continue this important work in partnership with the 2SLGBTQI+ community.

Progress on equity, diversity and inclusion only happens when individuals, organizations and communities identify and remove barriers, expand opportunities and work together to create meaningful change. As Canada's delivery company – serving people and businesses in every community – we have an important responsibility to be a positive force for change.

Advancing equity, diversity and inclusion is part of who we are as a company and will require sustained effort. We remain committed to that work and the values it represents.
