On 18 September 2024, IPC CEO, Holger Winklbauer, handed over an IPC Certificate of Excellence in the management and processing of international priority products to Claude Strasser, CEO of POST Luxembourg and his team for the Bettembourg Office of Exchange, which has been recertified for the fifth time and now holds a valid Certificate of Excellence until March 2027.

The IPC Certification of Excellence in the Management and Processing of International Priority Products has already existed for almost 25 years, becoming an essential instrument to measure the quality of the international postal service. Today, we have a total of 30 offices of exchange with a valid Certificate of Excellence.
