

Global postal industry shows solid growth trend for full year 2018

04-07-2019

The global postal industry strengthened its growth figures in 2018, thus clearly indicating that continued diversification and efficiency measures are paying off. Increasing B2C parcels and express volumes – both domestic and cross-border – supported revenue growth for many posts.

and improving their existing network and efficiency. E-commerce does remain the main and common growth driver and posts are expanding their networks and capacity to respond to the increasing demands.”

Winklbauer continued: “The ongoing increase in cross-border e-commerce volumes, mainly driven by lightweight and low-value items, represents an opportunity for postal operators worldwide. For them to fully reap the potential of e-commerce, posts must offer an integrated cross-border delivery platform including a delivery duty payment system upfront.”

In 2018, the global postal industry registered year-on-year revenue growth of 4.3%¹, according to preliminary results published today by International Post Corporation (IPC).

Holger Winklbauer, CEO of IPC said: “Postal industry revenue is growing solidly despite ongoing traditional mail decline. More than two thirds of posts analysed saw year-on-year growth of 1% or more, which clearly demonstrates that they continue to develop through broadening their service offerings Complete 2018 results as well as results for the first half of 2019 will be presented in the IPC Global Postal Industry Report to be published in November 2019. The report will include a comprehensive and detailed review of the postal industry, postal operators worldwide and analysing key market trends. A publicly available summary, the IPC GPIR Key Findings, will also be published in November.
