PostNord has been named the winner in the Sustainability category at the EY Nordic Risk Transformation Awards.

The award recognizes PostNord's efficient and strategic way of integrating sustainability in its core business.

The jury highlighted how PostNord combines climate risk analysis with its work under CSRD to identify material sustainability topics. This helps set clear priorities and strengthen long-term resilience.

"This award recognizes our efforts to integrate sustainability into our core business, and how our close collaboration through-out the Group strengthens our reporting," says Amanda Jackson, Head of Group Sustainability at PostNord.

About the award
The EY Nordic Risk Transformation Awards celebrate organizations that successfully turn risk and complexity into strategic advantages. The Sustainability category focuses on companies that embed ESG into strategy and operations to create measurable, long-term value.
