31-08-2026

NZ Post has confirmed internal Executive team appointments, continuing to strengthen operational efficiency and customer experience.

These changes support a focus on NZ Post's parcels and mail business, focussed on creating long-term value for customers, communities and the shareholder.

Effective from 1 September:

Bryan Dobson, currently Chief Customer Officer, will move into the role of Chief Commercial Officer – Parcels

Brendon Main, currently Chief Operating Officer, will take up the role of Chief Commercial Officer – Mail

Peter Kennedy, currently Chief Data & Technology Officer, will step into the role of Chief Operating Officer, with responsibility for both network operations and data & technology.

NZ Post Chief Executive David Walsh said the appointments will help ensure NZ Post is well positioned for the future.

"I am pleased to confirm these internal appointments to our Executive team and look forward to continuing to work with Bryan, Brendon and Peter," says Walsh.

"These roles strengthen our focus on the parts of the business that are central to our future success. Their collective leadership will help our teams build on the strong foundations already in place, while continuing to evolve our mail and parcels businesses and deliver great outcomes for our customers."
