

Posties injured at least five times a week on the road

07-10-2025

Australia Post today released alarming data showing Posties are injured by a third-party on the roads at least five times a week.

In the past financial year, over 280 Posties sustained injuries as a result of third-party traffic accidents, ranging from broken limbs and concussions to lacerations and serious trauma. Many of these incidents resulted in hospital treatment, time off work and ongoing psychological trauma.

Some of the most common third-party accidents involving Posties in the past year included third parties:

Failing to give way at intersections and roundabouts
Not leaving enough space to stop safely
Cutting corners
Overtaking on the wrong side of the road
Driving distracted while using a mobile phone
Not looking on footpaths when using scooters and bikes.

Australia Post General Manager Safety, Russell Munro, said the numbers were deeply concerning and highlight the shared responsibility for safer roads.

"Every day, our team members are out in communities delivering for Australians, but increasingly, they're also being put at risk by unsafe driver behaviour. We are taking comprehensive measures, such as reducing our motorcycle fleet, expanding the deployment of electric delivery vehicles (eDVs), and implementing upgraded telematics systems – including video and data monitoring across thousands of vehicles.

"Our data shows that the severity of injury to a Postie when involved in a motor accident is reduced when operating an eDV. In some instances, our team have walked away from the accident with only minor injuries.

"Our priority is to deliver for all Australians whilst ensuring the safety of our team members, so they return home to their families safely each day. However, road safety is a shared responsibility, and we urge all drivers to keep an eye out for our Posties," Mr Munro said.

Road safety tips:

Put your mobile phone out of reach when driving.

Slow down when approaching roundabouts.
Use your mirrors and check your blind spots for motorcycles and cyclists before turning or changing lanes.
When reversing out of your driveway, toot your horn and move slowly.
Keep your distance. Leave a large enough gap to the car in front of you so you can stop safely.

Do not drive when drowsy.

Do not drive under the influence of drugs and alcohol.
