Over the last years bpost transformed into an international and dynamic company with a strong performance track record. bpost became a leading operator in the postal and parcel sector with a recognized expertise and knowledge. For the future, bpost aims at remaining an innovative and efficient operator in Belgium with a last mile adapted to the changing needs of the Belgian society, an exceptional customer reach and a sustainable delivery of the Universal Service Obligation. We also want to become a leader in e-commerce logistics in the Benelux, using our meaningful presence in the EU and US to offer an access for Belgian companies and consumers to EU, US and transatlantic e-commerce logistics solutions. In order to realize this ambition we defined a focused strategy which remains unchanged.

The acceleration of the mail volume decline, the increase in parcel volumes and the e-commerce logistics value creation are among others important challenges requiring modifications to our organization and Group Executive Committee. The company will be organized around three business units:

Koen Van Gerven, CEO of bpost: “I’m convinced these organizational changes will better position our company to implement successfully our strategy. It will help us to accelerate our transformation into an international and dynamic group with headquarter in Belgium. I’m very happy to welcome Luc and Pierre into the Group Executive Committee of bpost. They bring with them outstanding leadership and expertise at top level in the field of Parcel & Logistics. I would also like to deeply thank Marc Huybrechts and Philippe Dubois for their contribution to bpost results over the last years. Under the leadership of Marc we delivered again a positive volume trend in advertising mail, acquired Ubiway and developed the credit and digital activities of bpost bank. Philippe implemented successfully our Vision 2020 program and launched the new sorting center in Brussels last year. Together with the other members of the Group Executive Committee I’m convinced we have a very strong and experienced management team to accelerate the transformation journey of this company.”
